

I am very much against eliminating the rules that restrict concentration of ownership of media companies in markets. I'm a Republican and a true believer in democracy and capitolsim. However, there are certian things that must be limited in order to ensure a complete and free press communications to the public. Dominance of corporate entities in localized markets whether it be by cross ownership of media types (radio, newspaper, television, etc.) or a large percentate of household TV influence can only destabilize the public's trust in the information they recieve. Today we enjoy a free press and a strong public trust in the media as a result of the regulations that are in place. Please do not remove these regulations only for the sake of profit.
